Bursaries available to attend Queensland Landcare Conference

Community based natural resource management group, the Queensland Murray-Darling Committee (QMDC) will support eight private land managers from across the region to attend the upcoming Queensland Landcare Conference.

QMDC, who is one of the Conference sponsors, will be looking for eight people managing private land in the Queensland Murray-Darling Basin who have an interest in representing their community at the Conference in September.

“Every year we support community members to attend the Landcare Conference in the hope that they will share information, learn something new, and create a network of contacts from across the state,” said QMDC’s Tricia Gowdie.

The bursaries will cover registration costs and contribute up to $200 toward travel and accommodation costs. Interested land managers must complete a nomination form by 25 August. Forms can be obtained by phoning the Toowoomba office, on 07 4637 6270, or by logging on to www.qmdc.org.au.

This year’s Queensland Landcare Conference will be held in Monto, from 21 to 24 September. For more information about the Conference, go to <http://www.qldlandcareconference.com/>.
